

Wholesale Arrest of Germans in England

The wholesale arrests of Germans throughout England has brought the German benevolent committee face to face with a problem equal to that of the first few weeks of the war. The large majority of those arrested have been employed steadily, and their families will be dependant during the stay of the bread-winners at the detention camps.

It is estimated that there are 3,000 alien enemies in the United Kingdom, of whom a majority are in London. The burden of coming London and its environs falls upon Scotland Yard, and all day long the forces attached to the metropolitan police stations have been working at high pressure. It will take some time completely to clean up, in spite of the fact that a majority of these aliens have been registered with the police since the outbreak of hostilities.

Five hundred were arrested at Manchester in 24 hours, and the number elsewhere are in proportion. At Northampton a prominent German who was manager of the local street railroad system was forced to resign in spite of the fact that he had lived in England for 27 years. It is said that he did not take out neutralization papers until after the war began.

The Cold Snap.

The New York Herald says that the chief interest in the recent sudden change in the weather centers in the question whether it forebodes an early and hard winter. We are inclined to think that most people did not take a future interest in the cold snap. It was rather a case of taking the view that sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof. There was a rush for heavy underwear, furnaces, stoves and heating conveniences in general were put into service, and folks looked askance at the cold plunge which had been more popular in more temperate weather. But what the weather forecasted as touching the coming winter was probably not thought of by as many as one out of ten people. In fact, most people are convinced that the weather defies prognostication, the more especially when the predicting is three months ahead. So it is gratifying but not surprising to find the authority whose utterances suggested this discussion saying that the present wintry spell seems to have no special significance and can not be considered as indicative of an exceptionally icy and trying winter in 1915. We had no idea that it had, but confirmation even of the things that one most firmly believes is always welcome.—News and Observer.

BLOCKADED.

Every Household in Boone Should Know How to Resist It.

If your back aches when the kidneys are blocked.

You should help the kidneys with their work.

Don't's Kidney Pills are especially for weak kidneys. Recommended by thousands—here's testimony from this vicinity.

"M. M. Childress, Lenoir, N. C. says 'I suffered a great deal from kidney trouble for number of years. The kidney action was irregular and the kidney secretions contained sediment. I could hardly straighten after I stood, and my back pained me nearly all the time. Finally I used Don's Kidney Pills and they stopped the pains and made my kidneys normal. I am glad to confirm the public statement I then gave, recommending Don's Kidney Pills.'"

Price 50c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Don's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Childress had. Foster Milburn Co. Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Fall Novels.

Jack London writes, pen dipped in gore, of scraps aboard the Elsinore. The superman is there on deck, with catcliffs climbing on his neck, and decks and bulwarks are awash with forty kinds of blood, b'gosh. A whooping tale of misfit men—the "Sea Wolf" warmed and dished again. Oh, Jack, your elbow's getting tired; one cannot always be inspired! "The Auction Block," by Rex E. Beach, is more than just a scream—a screech; Rex here forsakes the Arctic strand, the snowy pass and frozen land, and takes our social scheme apart, and shows it has no brain or heart; he writes of soaks and libertines, and sports who live in their machines, and draws a truly frightful sketch of maid for sale to wealthy wretch. And ever as we read we think, this book is surely on the blink, and when our reading it has ceased, we'll taste it for six months at least. Oh, Rex can write such corking tales of heroes lost in Arctic gales, of great things done by rugged men—why does he prostitute his pen, and write this twaddle, rank and raw? There surely ought to be a law. Alas, how far a man must look before he'll find a first class book.—Walt Mason in The News and Observer.

The Cost to the South of the European War.

Wilmington Star. A friend sends the Star the statement of an eminent scholar in the North, emphasizing the rather startling fact that the monetary loss to the South during the first 60 days of the pan-European war has been twice as heavy per capita of population in the South as has been the cost per capita of population in France during the first 60 days of the present gigantic conflict of the nation.

A few days ago the French government estimated that it had cost that country up to October 1, 7,000,000 a day, aggregating a total of $420,000,000, whereas the South's loss on 15,000,000 bales of cotton at $30 per bale would be $450,000,000. That loss to the South is not inclusive of Virginia, Missouri and California, which states produce only insignificant amounts of cotton. The population of the "cotton states" of the South is almost exactly half that of France.

We can realize how heavily the war has hit the South when it is known that for every dollar the war has cost the French people per capita to the people of the South have lost more than two dollars on cotton alone. Yet when we take into consideration the other immense losses of the South in a business and industrial way, we begin to appreciate the strain which was put upon our people while they were at peace. However, peace is worth the money.

A Fine Farm For Sale.

Two hundred and twenty-five acres. 175 acres in cultivation. A fine grass and grain farm, producing 40 to 50 bushels of corn per acre. Balance timber. Good spring in every field. Loveliest home in East Tennessee. Two story eight rooms, with fire-place in each room. Within 90 feet of the kitchen door six streams of pure free-stone water burst out forming a stream that runs a churning machine and forms a fish pond stocked with California trout. One good store house. Fine location for goods business. Large barn 45 x 65 ft with hay fork, and all other necessary out houses. The most suitable location for summer resort and a dairy farm in the upper end of the state. Within one mile from the beautiful Watauga River, and two miles from the town of Butler, on the V. & S. W. Ry. where a city high school and a college are in a flourishing condition. With two good churches and a district school, within 1.2 mile from this farm. Reason for selling, my health is feeble, my wife is dead and children are all gone. This farm is worth $20,000 but the price is only $11,000. $3,000 cash, balance on good terms.
